WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1818

[No. 5159.]

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS AND MALIGNANT FEVERS
is recommended

Hahn's ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS
THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak
more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further,
that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases estimated desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.
They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Hamilton's Elixir,
A sovereign remedy for colds, obsterate coughs, asthma, sore throats, can-curs, and approaching consumptions.—
To persons who have children afflicted with the HOOPING COUGH, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorders to which children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative,
Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of Violent cramps in the stomach and back
Nervous Disorders
Consumptions
Lowness of spirits
Loss of appetite
Indigestion
Impurity of blood
Melancholy
Hysterical affection
Gout in the stomach
Inward weaknesses
Pains in the limbs
and debility
Relaxations, etc.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard.
A safe and effectual remedy for acute and chronic rheumatism, gout, rheumatic gout, palsy, lambo, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains, bruises, pain
in the face and neck, etc. etc.

Lee's Ointment for the Itch.
Warranted an infallible remedy at one application, may be used with perfect safety by pregnant women, or on infants a week old; not containing a particle of mercury or any dangerous ingredient whatever, and not accompanied with that tormenting smart which attends the application of other remedies.

Hahn's true & genuine German Corn Plaster.
An infallible remedy for corns, speedily removing them root and branch, without giving any pain.

The Genuine Persian Lotion,
So celebrated among the fashionable throughout Europe, is an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellent minerals,
the basis of other lotions, and of unparalleled efficacy in removing blemishes
of the face and skin, freckles, pimples, inflammatory redness, scurfs, tetter, ring-
worms, sunburns, prickly heat, &c.

Hahn's genuine Eye Water.
A sovereign remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of nature weakness or of accident.

Tooth Ache Drops.
The only remedy yet discovered which gives immediate and lasting relief in the most severe instances.

Lee's Infallible Ague and Fever Drops
For the cure of agues, remittent and intermittent fevers.

At the place of sale pamphlets may be had gratis, describing cures performed by the above medicines; the number, importance and respectability of which, fully justify every article of this advertisement.

Land for Sale.
THE Subscriber offers for sale, about 2000 acres of land in Fairfax county, not more than seven to nine miles from Alexandria. The property is well watered, has a sufficiency of wood, and (judging from the condition of small and well cultivated farms that adjoin it) is highly susceptible of improvement.—It is at present divided into tenements, of from one to two hundred acres, each provided with a dwelling house, out houses, a garden and orchard; and might, of course, be laid out into four or five very compact farms.
The principal object of the subscriber,
being the introduction of a good system of husbandry into his neighborhood, he will sell on very moderate terms, give a long credit on the whole amount of the purchase money, and require no other interest, than what the present rent of the land pays, being about 5 per cent. on the estimated value.

ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE AND DAILY ADVERTISER.

PUBLISHED BY SAMUEL SNOWDEN, ROYAL STREET.

Daily Gazette 87...Country Gazette 85.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1816.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT AT WASHINGTON.

Tuesday, February 24, 1816.

The death of colonel Goodwyn, one of the Virginia members, was yesterday announced in the house by Mr. Newton, who delivered a handsome but short eulogium on the character of that gentleman—an eulogium in which, from some observation, I do most heartily concur. On Mr. Goodwyn's politics I have never cast away a thought: they may, for aught I can tell, have been of the new school of democracy, but his manners, and the disposition of heart out of which they arose, were of the good old school of republicanism—plain, unaffected, simple and kindly. The house resolved to wear crape for a month, and after having gone through the forms customary on such occasions, adjourned. As did the senate too on the event being announced to them.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

We observe in the speech of Mr. Kennedy, in the Maryland legislature, on the subject of making a turnpike road to the District of Columbia, that the city of Baltimore is very sensitive upon allowing the District a participation even in her natural advantages of commerce. The speaker says he is told that Baltimore cannot consent to the measure, although she is making turnpike roads to every crossing place of the Potomac, to obtain also the produce of Virginia; yet she cannot suffer the District of Columbia to have any advantages, though they are to produce a general good to the community. He says he has understood that there are men, of high standing too, in Baltimore who are affected with something like hydrophobia when Potomac water is mentioned. This we well know to be the fact, from the languid state of the navigation of the Potomac, though the state of Maryland holds a stake of $180,000 in its stock.

We are persuaded that the commerce of this District is not sufficiently appreciated even by its own inhabitants, who too often join in the clamors of the designing or disappointed against its well doing; for, by a late report of the secretary of the treasury to congress, it appears that the District of Columbia exported in the year ending the 30th Sept. 1817, of domestic and foreign articles, in value, one million seven hundred and eighty-eight thousand and fifty eight dollars; more than two thirds of which must have been from the town of Alexandria, and exceeding the exports of the eight states of N. Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, North Carolina, Ohio, and all the other territories of the United States together.

SPLENDID MURDER.

In some of the northern and eastern papers it is not unusual to see paragraphs reflecting on the morality and religion of the southern and western states. Some of our readers will be pleased with the following specimen of the liberality and openness of the south:

The Rev. John M. Donnell, of Elizabethtown, N. J. well known for his zeal in behalf of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Princeton, as agent of the general assembly, is now on a tour thro' the southern states, soliciting contributions for the benefit of the institution. In the city of Savannah alone he received the unprecedented sum of fifteen thousand dollars. Mr. M. Donnell had arrived at Augusta on the 4th instant, and the Augusta Chronicle says that he will receive in that town as substantial proofs of the dispositions of its inhabitants to support an enlightened ministry.

Extract of a letter from New-Orleans, dated January 24.

New-Orleans, at this season of the year, exhibits all the bustle of a great fair. Here are crowded together multitudes of sellers and buyers from Alabama to Nagitoches, and north to Kentucky, Ohio, and the extreme of Missouri. All seem eager to grasp the object, and many obtain it, for it is a country richer in its productions than if it possessed the mines of Mexico. Cotton is abundant, and produce arrives at this place as though it grew in floating down the river. I have seen the steam boat arrive with 800 bales of cotton on deck, and this repeated again and again. It is judged that there will be more produce brought to this city during the present than in any former season.

The weather has been colder here this winter than has been known for many years. The thermometer has been as low as 27 degrees. I have seen ice two inches thick, and the ground has been covered with snow for several days.

A CURE FOR CANINE MADNESS.

Majority of N. Orleans.

Mr. Chabert, a physician from the University of Montpellier, lately arrived in this city, has just made known to me a remedy for the canine madness, which has been pointed out as a specific by the Italian physicians. That remedy was published in the Piedmontese Gazette of the 8th May last, from which it is literally copied by Mr. Chabert himself, before leaving France. The discovery of it is due to professor Bugnattelli, and it would be the more advantageous to try by experiments the confidence which it may be entitled to, as the use of the remedy can be attended with no dangerous consequences. I therefore deem it my duty to make it known to my fellow citizens, by publishing the following, as it has been transmitted to me:

"Thanks to the celebrated professor Bugnattelli, an efficacious remedy has, at last, been discovered against canine madness, perhaps the most horrid of all diseases. That remedy consists in hydrochloric acid (acid muriatic ox. aqueux) used as well inside of the body as on the exterior parts of it. The wound produced by the bite of mad animals must be washed with it. It appears that that substance destroys the hydrophobic poison, even when used several days after the fatal bite. A number of well authenticated cases operated by that simple means, in the great hospitals of Lombardy, do not permit to doubt the progress of that precious remedy." AUG. MACARTY.

New-Orleans, Jan. 15, 1818.

Trinidad, Jan. 24.

We are in possession of important news from Caracas. Mr. Lindsay, of Grenada, the day before yesterday arrived here from Cumana and Caracas, which last city he left the end of December. He states that the confidence in the royal government was restored—that many emigrant families had returned from St. Thomas and Caracas; among which, we understand, two sisters of the marquis Toro. Orders had been received from the Spanish cabinet to observe the strictest obedience to the royal pardon of those persons who would wish to return and avail themselves of it. All the families returned were immediately put in possession of their property; and from the known character of the present captain general, brigadier general Pardo, to the emigrants who wish to return to that country may expect an entire compliance with the royal indulgence.

From 2 to 300 houses were rebuilding at Caracas; and, at Lagaira and Puerto Cabello, trade with the neutral colonies and with Old Spain had greatly revived.

From the New York Evening Post.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The following letter, received from one of our correspondents at Washington, presents this important subject in so interesting, so just, and so imposing an aspect, as should command the attention of every man who feels a due concern for his country's welfare.

The ordinary business of congress seems to be going on as usual, and quietly—the question of a provision for the surviving officers of the revolutionary army is still depending, and what will be its form or fate is very uncertain.

There are, however, believed to be quiet surface two or three subjects of importance, which may be brought up during the present session, and discussed, with more animation and zeal than hitherto have appeared in the debates of the present winter. No one of these subjects is more extensive, or surrounded by greater difficulties, than that relative to the independence of the Patriot colonies.

It is understood that the President feels no indifference respecting the existence of these colonies: their independence; but that he is, nevertheless, desirous of pursuing a cautious course relative to them, and which, while it accords with their views, shall not endanger the great interests of the United States.

With a firm conviction that the independence of these colonies must materially promote the welfare and prosperity of the United States, and that so long as the war is confined to Spain, and the colonies, there is little probability that the former will be able to re-establish her dominion over them, our policy can hardly be mistaken.

If no other foreign power interfere, we shall best promote the views of these colonies, and best consult our own welfare, by also abstaining from all direct interference in the war, and from every measure which may not be retracted with honor, or satisfactorily explained.

It is scarcely to be doubted that the foreign governments have been sounded, and their policy as respects the war between Spain and the Colonies, seems to be impartial and neutral. If the United States pursue a different course, may not the powers which have charged themselves with the high police of Europe, instead of confining their care to the world, be disposed to take into consideration the affairs of the new? Although in a question affecting the honor or essential rights of the nation, we ought not to be deterred by this consideration—yet, in a concern of calculation, of an interest merely eventual, and in which the main interest is that of a third party, the same should not be altogether disregarded.

The knowledge which is possessed by those who are best informed concerning the condition of the Spanish colonies, is surprisingly defective, and little satisfactory—their situation may be better, and it may be worse than it is supposed to be; and the object of the commissioners sent out by the President, is to obtain full and more precise intelligence on this subject. To adopt any decisive or irrevocable measure, respecting the colonies in the present scanty and ambiguous state of the information concerning them, and when more authentic information may at no distant day be expected, would seem to be evidence of restlessness and rashness, rather than of moderation and prudence.

It must not, however, be imagined that the most decided friends of the Spanish colonies are desirous that the United States should take a part with them in the war with Spain—on the contrary, they admit the correctness of the policy that enjoins upon the United States to remain neutral; but they allege, that without acknowledging the independence of these colonies, and thereby establishing between us and Spain, the full relations existing between us and Spain, the mutuality is only nominal; and they illustrate this allegation by facts and observations, which if not conclusive, are very plausible. Their counsel therefore is, and such, we are told, will be the advice that they will urge on Congress to give to the President, that the U. S. should immediately acknowledge the independence of one or more of the Spanish colonies, which it is said are now in the actual possession of independence—and they assert that such acknowledgment is a measure which can afford no just cause of offence to Spain; and that it is not only consistent with, but absolutely necessary to, an impartial system of neutrality.

That it is competent for the nation to follow this advice no body will doubt—but all must also agree that, in doing so, we subject ourselves to all its hazards and uncertainties.

In the actual posture of affairs, it may be expedient to suffer this complicated subject to remain with the president a little longer, undisturbed by the interference of congress. He ought but to understand the temper and the policy of foreign governments; his station enables him to obtain information; and his duty requires of him carefully to weigh the contradictory representations concerning the condition of these colonies—His opinions are believed to be friendly to their independence, and the responsibility of his office is favorable to the prudence of his decisions.

If the President be pressed by congress to acknowledge the independence of any of the Spanish colonies, and to exchange ministers with them, however innocent this may be deemed by us to be, and whatever quotations we may make from the writers in public law, to prove our right, no man will believe that Spain will see our interference in the same just and harmless light.

According to the colonial system of Spain, the trade with her colonies is a close monopoly; and her practice under this system has been to seize and confiscate the ships and cargoes of all interlopers found upon the coasts of the colonies.

In the early part of the last century, England made war on Spain to oblige her to renounce this practice; she concluded the war without effecting its object, and Spain has since continued it. Our acknowledgment of the independence of any of these colonies, cannot bridge the rights of Spain, nor restrain her exertions to enforce her laws of trade, or to reduce the colonies to submission.

But although it may not impair the rights of Spain, as respects ourselves, it will place our trade and intercourse with the new states, on the same footing as our trade and intercourse with England, France or any other nation; and our citizens will have the same right to call upon congress to protect them in this new, equally as in any other legitimate branch of navigation and trade.

This collision could have but one result—some persons see nothing discouraging in war with Spain—and a war with Spain alone, would not be formidable—but we cannot be certain, nay, we can hardly expect in the extraordinary condition of Europe, that other powers may not be drawn in to take a part in a war, having for its object the separation of the Spanish colonies. The probability of this event is not diminished by the notorious fact that Spain has taken great pains to circulate through the courts of Europe an opinion that we are seeking an occasion to go to war with her; that we covet her contiguous territory, and indulge in views still more extensive.

Although we know that this opinion is wholly without foundation, and that the same is a shameful device which Spain makes use of to cover her injustice, in continuing to deny to us an adequate reparation for the multiplied injuries she has done us—still others do not know this fact; and the opinion is on this account, not the less influential in exciting jealousy, nor less likely to lead certain powers to interfere, first their mediation, and then their arms, is a war brought on by our acknowledged recognition of the independence of the Spanish colonies—and then by the assistance which our interference may become the occasion of Spain's receiving the difficulties of the colonies may be multiplied, the danger of their subjection increased, and the period of their independence deferred.

So little are these views the result of timid conjecture, or of a visionary speculation, and therefore unworthy of the sober consideration of our statesmen, that they are derived from the only analogous case, with whose history we are well acquainted, the case of our own revolution.

We solicited France to recognize our independence for a long time before she consented to do so. As soon, however, as she resolved on the step, instead of relying upon the innocence of the act, and her right to avow it, she looked well into the question, not only of what ought to be, but further, of what probably would be the conduct of England when she should avow her acknowledgment. Although she might have sent forth a manifesto in justification of her conduct, demonstrating its innocence, and proving, by citations from writers on the law of nations, that her recognition could afford no just cause of offence to England; still she well understood that it would be unwise and impolitic to rely on the efficacy of manifestos, or to omit those measures of precaution, which in all probability would be, and which in fact proved to be necessary.

When, therefore, the ambassador announced to the English government that France had acknowledged the independence of the U. States, he added, "that being determined efficaciously to protect the lawful commerce of her subjects, and to maintain the honor of her flag, France had taken with the U. States eventual measures for this purpose." There was dignity in this proceeding, and the event proved that there was equal wisdom.

Instead then of endeavoring to convince ourselves, and to persuade the public, that the acknowledgment of the independence of the Spanish colonies, is a mere harmless and unimportant act, that we may lawfully do, and which ought not, and therefore will not give offence to others; it behoves those who may be called on to examine this subject, to extend their enquiries a little further, to look into the influence of the passions on public measures, and to examine what, according to the course of human affairs, allowing to power, to pride, and to the mortification of disappointment, their natural influence, is likely to be the consequence of our acknowledgment of the independence of the Spanish colonies.

If this be done, and it still be deemed both just and expedient to make such acknowledgment, the President will forthwith enter into treaties of friendship and commerce with the new states, not to secure to the U. States exclusive commercial advantages, but to prevent such advantages being granted to others. Whether he will also conclude with them treaties of alliance, having for their object the establishment of their independence, and engaging mutual co-operation and succor, are questions of the highest political import, and the discussion of which will call for the most profound deliberation. He will furthermore give prompt and formal notice to Spain, that he has acknowledged the independence of the new states; that he has formed with them treaties of friendship and commerce; and that the U. States being determined to protect the lawful commerce of their citizens, and maintain the honor of their flag, have taken the necessary measures for this purpose.

Among these measures should be found the immediate re-establishment of the internal taxes, including a land tax; the amendment of the army; and the equipment of our whole naval force.

He who believes, and endeavors to persuade the country that the U. States can so easily acknowledge the independence of the Spanish colonies without a doping adequate measures of precaution, might not be regarded as a safe and experienced counsellor.

If the U. States resolve to acknowledge the independence of the Spanish colonies—be it so—but let the nation be prepared manfully to maintain its ground when once taken—and instead of indulging in the hope that this can be effected by orations and manifestos, let them understand that it must be done by defence and by arms.

That a general sympathy and universal good wishes in favor of the Spanish colonies, in the struggle with their unnatural parent, do exist, and are cherished throughout the U. States, and that too with unexampled unanimity, no man who attends to what is passing around him, will entertain a doubt—and any measures which would promote their success, without involving the U. States in great and complicated difficulties, would be universally approved.

But in the influence of these feelings, we must be restrained by a paramount duty—the welfare and safety of our own country, are the objects of our first and highest care—while the great interests and honor of the U. States are violated, it is to their vindication that the government should first attend; and no remote or mere collateral policy, should divert, or withdraw its regards from this most urgent duty.

If the essential rights and the sovereignty of the U. States have been and continue to be violated by Spain; if, after long and patient negotiations, to obtain an adequate reparation of these injuries, Spain not only persists in refusing satisfaction, but from her forbearance, has of late added insolence to her refusal; will the honor of the nation permit a further continuance of this disgraceful negotiation? Will not such continuance sink us deeper in humiliation, and embolden Spain to rise still higher, if possible, in the tone of contempt and scorn? Rather than this—let our minister in Spain be recalled, let all further negotiation—both there and here be broken off—let the whole subject be brought before congress, and let them resolve to truckle to Spain, or to prepare to vindicate the national honor.

It is more than probable, that this course will have its proper effect on the Spanish council;—those who know them best, will least doubt, a pacific and satisfactory result—Should it prove otherwise, the interim will have been employed in these measures, which, after this proceeding, cannot be omitted—and the war will call for only a short exposition, to satisfy the world of its justice.

In such a war, just and necessary, we cannot presume that any other nation will interfere against us; nor doubt, that by the vigor of our arms, and the favor of Heaven, it will be prosecuted to a speedy and honorable issue.

If Spain force us into this war, let South America remember that the enemy of her enemy, is more than half her friend.

Arrived, British Brig Vittoria, Twentyman, from Barbados, via Turks Island, 15 days from the latter. Captain T. states, that while he was lying at anchor on the Horse-shoe, on Wednesday last, about 1 o'clock, a small pilot boat built schrr. having from twenty five to thirty men on deck, who were all armed, and some of them in the act of loading their muskets, ran alongside and hailed the Vittoria, to know if she had seen any Spanish vessels outside the Cape? Captain T. answered in the negative, when at that moment a top-sail schrr. appeared in sight, and the pirate (for such Captain T. believed her to be) gave chase to her in the direction of Cape Charles, & lost sight of her in a fog. Captain T. represents the man who hailed as a tall savage looking fellow, with black bushy whiskers, wearing a blue surcoat, and thinks the name of the schrr. was the "Margaret," and that she hailed from Alexandria.

The British brig Vittoria, Twentyman, from Turks Island, got aground on Lambert's Flats on Wednesday evening last.

A brig from N. York, bound to Alexandria, was aground near Willoughby's bluff yesterday.

A Swedish brig fr. Copenhagen, bound to Baltimore, was at anchor in Hampton Roads, yesterday. The brig Agent, from N. York bound to Alexandria, was spoken off the Cape on Wednesday morning—informing, that the brig Leopard, (Liebert, for Alexandria, was to sail immediately after her.

Sea Serpent,
AT THE
ALEXANDRIA MUSEUM.
The Manager of the Museum informs the public that Captain John Beach, Junr., who is now in town, has deposited this most extraordinary and interesting animal in the Museum during his stay here, which may be seen from 10 to 12 in the forenoon, and from 4 to 5 in the afternoon, every day this week.
Captain Beach saw the great Sea Serpent repeatedly, and took a drawing of him; and purchased this young one at the time it was caught at Gloucester, and submitted it to the inspection of the Linnæan Society of N. England, who named it Scotiopsis Atlantica.
Ages may pass away, and a similar object, probably, may not be presented for public inspection. Independently of this attraction, the Museum has now a very valuable and extensive collection of permanent matter, worthy of public approbation.
Twenty five cents a visit—to be paid at the door in every instance.

THEATRE.

LAST NIGHT OF MR. PEPLIN'S COMPANY OF HORSES.
At the earnest request of several persons in the country, who have not had an opportunity of seeing the spectacle of Timour the Tartar, the managers are induced to represent it, in conjunction with the grand operatic drama of Tekeli—a novelty not hitherto introduced in this country, of two horse pieces being acted on the same evening.

On FRIDAY EVENING, Feb. 27.
The splendid melo drama (by Hook) of TEKELI, OR
THE SIEGE OF MONTGATZ.
A description of the scenery, machinery, &c. prepared expressly for Tekeli.

Act I. Scene I. NIGHT. Curtain rises to show music. A FOREST. On the right a large tree, on the left a thick cluster of small trees.
During the last part of the overture and rising of the curtain, A STORM.—Tekeli is discovered lying on the branch of a large tree, and Wolf (his friend) asleep at the foot of it. Dialogue—Music. A skirmishing party of the Imperialists, which is about the wood for the purpose of cutting off the retreat of Tekeli, enter. Tekeli and Wolf fall on the ground and escape a charge of the enemy. They subsequently hide behind a thicket. The Infantry charge and THE CAVALRY follow—the horses displaying agility by each leaping the bushes. Tekeli and Wolf having escaped, rush forward, kneel and embrace. Music expressive the whole time. Dialogue: Villagers enter—whole being made acquainted with the wants of Tekeli, compose a litter ornamented with boughs. Chorus—"Hail the nuptial hour," and exit.

Act II. An interior view of the MILL of KEBEN. In the front a barn filled with the implements of husbandry. A large extensive view of the WIND MILL, with the sails at work. On the left a Bridge crossing the river Torca; under which is the Water Mill seen at work. On the right Christina's Apartment. In the back, at the supposed distance of 3 miles, is the FORTRESS OF MONTGATZ, on a rock. In the front two or three barrels. Enter Christina—song, "How sweet are the flowers that grow by yon fountain." Dialogue. Tekeli is borne in on the litter—he makes himself known to the miller, who, although an enemy, shelters him from the pursuit of the soldiery, which are stationed in every apartment to prevent his escape. They are defeated, and Tekeli is preserved in an extraordinary manner. March. The detachment in the mill, with Maurice commanding, march on and range themselves. Count Caraffa enters with his party. The mill detachment presents arms—the count examines the miller, whose answers not being satisfactory, he is dragged before the court.

Act III. A GOTHIC HALL in the Fortress of Montgat. A table covered with a carpet, on which lies a mantle and helmet. The curtain rises to solemn music. Alexina addresses her soldiers; and in answer to an imperious demand of Count Caraffa, made through his herald Edmund, she strikes her shield, the doors of the Hall fly open, and discover the battlements of the Fortress filled with horse and foot. Alexina then mounts her elegant Arabian charger and addresses them.

Last Scene. The whole extent of the Battlements, the Towers and Walls of Montgat. In an elevated situation on the tower hangs the standard of the Hungarians. On the distant hills Caraffa's Camp—the Austrian colors flying. A Gale and Port Cullis. March. Enter troops in all directions—GENERAL ENGAGEMENT between the Austrians and Hungarians. During the fight a Hungarian officer, with unimpeded courage, mounds the battlements, and his horse, with wonderful sagacity, tears down the Austrian flag. Tekeli is seen on the Ramparts—Caraffa dares him to the fight. TEKELI ENTERS ON HORSEBACK. SINGLE COMBAT between Tekeli and Caraffa, in the course of which Tekeli's horse is shot under him by Caraffa. He dismounts, and they fight on foot—Caraffa is overthrown. STORMING OF THE FORTRESS. Tekeli and his party prove victorious, and he is restored to his Alexina, amidst the shouts of the victors and the waving of the Hungarian flag from the towers of the Fortress.

AFTER WHICH, A VARIETY OF
New and elegant Dancing.
By MR. & MRS. PARKER.
To conclude with the grand spectacle (in three acts) of TIMOUR THE TARTAR.
Timour Mr. Caldwell
Zorilda Mrs. Edwile
A description of the most prominent scenery, &c.
Act I. The interior of Timour's Fortress, with a bridge in the back ground; on one side of the stage a tower in which Agib is confined. A magnificent procession of the Tartars over the Bridge on horseback, conducting Zorilda, mounted on a courser richly caparisoned; the courser kneels and Zorilda dismounts.
Scene 3. A spirited Tournament. Timour and Zorilda enter and seat themselves on Thrones to witness the

Combat of Kerim & Sanballat, who at that moment enter the Lists on horseback. Kerim's horse takes part in the combat, and drags Sanballat to the ground. Kerim dismounts and proposes to renew the combat on foot—the horses are led away and the fight begins. Kerim falls and loses his sword; his rival rushes to despatch him: at that instant, Kerim's horse interposes to save his master. Sanballat in fury stabs the horse—who falls and expires at his master's feet.
Act II. A splendid Bridal Chamber, belonging to Timour.
The Last Scene represents Timour's Fortress by moonlight. A Tremendous Cataract and Waterfall, over which is an arched bridge. One side of the stage represents the exterior of Timour's Fortress. A variety of smaller Towers and Terraces appear in the perspective.
During this scene, the Georgians and Mingrelians engage the Tartars on horse and foot. Timour himself on horseback appears and encourages his troops—he becomes personally engaged and is dismounted—he is pursued, and not having time to enter a Portcullis leading to the interior of his castle, he climbs the battlements and reaches in safety the Tower's top. He brings forth Zorilda, and threatens to destroy her unless Agib, who has escaped to the Georgians, is restored to him—she breaks from him and runs to the bridge, from which she leaps into the water—Agib on horseback rushes after her. The Georgians with a BATTERING RAM make a breach in Timour's castle—All the horses enter. At the conclusion of the General Engagement, Agib having recovered his mother, returns with her on horseback. Timour is overthrown—but Zorilda spares his life at the intercession of Agib and Oglio.

* Tickets and places for the boxes to be taken of Mr. Howard, at the Box Office on FRIDAY, from 10 o'clock till 2, and from 3 till the conclusion of the performance.

Doors to be opened at half past 5 and the curtain to rise at half past 6 precisely.

Fan-Sash Making.
METAL FAN-SASHES, of various descriptions, will be made by the subscriber, at his shop, lower end of Duke street. The want of a Metal Fan-Sash Manufacture in Alexandria, has hitherto been severely felt by builders and others, who have been compelled to make use of wood, which is neither elegant nor durable. The various forms into which the metal can be shaped have given it a decided superiority, and the difference in the price is very trifling. The subscriber has been at considerable expense in procuring the necessary preparations, and relies on public enterprise for success in the undertaking.
Gentlemen in the country, by sending the dimensions of their sashes, can have them made at the same price as if in town.
